BOWEL HEALTH AND SCREENING
A resource for people with learning disabilities
This leaflet is to help you make informed choices about your bowel health and the bowel screening programme.
About your bowels

What does your bowel do?

Your bowel takes the goodness from your food and returns it to your body. The waste that comes from food then passes through the bowel. This comes out as poo.

1. stomach
2. small bowel
3. colon
4. rectum (3+4 = large bowel)
5. anus
Where is your bowel?
It is between your stomach and your bottom.

Is my bowel healthy?
You should go to the doctor if:

• You are bleeding from your bottom
• You have blood in your poo
• Your poo is loose. Or it goes from being loose to hard
• You have started to get very bad tummy pains
• Your tummy pains happen after eating
• You have lost a lot of weight without trying
• You are very pale and tired a lot of the time

It does not mean that you have bowel cancer if you have any of the problems on the list. It is good to check with your doctor if you have any of the problems.
How do I keep my bowel healthy?

At every age it is important to take care of your bowels. Things you can do to help this are:

• Drink 6 to 8 glasses of water every day
• Eat 5 pieces of fruit or vegetables every day
• Eating fibre is good for your bowel for example brown bread and beans
• Eating too much red meat is not good for your bowel
• Smoking is not good for your bowel
• Exercise is good for you and your bowel
• If you are finding it difficult to poo exercise can help you go to the toilet
• Drinking a lot of alcohol can be bad for your bowel

Between the ages of 50 and 74 participating in the bowel screening programme as well as regularly checking for signs and symptoms also supports you to take care of your bowel health.
What is bowel screening?

Bowel screening lets us take a look at your poo. We can tell if your bowel is healthy by looking at your poo.

Who needs to do bowel screening?

- You
- Everyone aged between 50 and 74 years old
- Every 2 years

Why should I do bowel screening?

People can get a disease in their bowel called bowel cancer.

In Scotland over 4,000 people get bowel cancer every year.

It is more common for people over 50 to get bowel cancer.

Therefore people over 50, and up to age 74 are invited to the bowel screening programme. Bowel screening helps to spot cancer at an early stage. This means that people have a better chance of getting better.
The bowel screening kit looks for blood in your poo. How does bowel screening work?

You will send the Bowel Screening Programme Team some bits of your poo.

These are called samples.

They have sent you a kit to help you do this.

Here is what the test kit looks like.

- Screening information
- Sticks
- Kit
- Envelope

Using the kit

We need to check samples from 3 different poos. You will need to post your kit within 10 days of taking your first sample.

This booklet is set out to cover the 3 different poo samples. This means you will do the same thing 3 times. Only 1 sample can be done on 1 day. There are 3 spaces on the kit to put your poo samples in.
Sample 1

Get the letter and the kit that was sent to you. On the letter there is a sticky label that has your name on it.

Take the label off the letter. Stick the label on the first space on the kit. Write the date on the first space of your kit.

It is important that you keep your poo away from the water in your toilet bowl. Water will ruin your poo sample. You can stop your poo getting wet from the toilet bowl and your pee by:

- Putting your hand in a small plastic bag. Then you can catch your poo
- Using a clean and empty tub to catch your poo. The tub must be one you can throw away
- Using an empty ice cream tub or margarine tub
- Deciding how you are going to take your poo sample before you go to the toilet

Take the kit and 2 sticks into the toilet/bathroom. Pull back the first flap. Keep the other 2 flaps closed. You will see 2 boxes.
Do your poo and make sure it does not touch the water.

Use a stick to take a small sample of your poo. Put the small poo sample in the first box.

Wrap up the stick in toilet tissue and put it in the bin.

Use the other stick to take another small sample from a different part of the poo.

Put this in the second box.
Wrap up the stick in toilet paper and put in the bin. Please do not flush the stick down the toilet.

Close the flap.
Put the end of the flap under the red tab at the bottom.
This will keep it shut.
Cleaning up

Empty the poo into the toilet/bathroom.

Wash or throw away the container.

The bowel screening looks for blood in your poo.

Most people will do another test in 2 years.

Some people if invited will need to do the test again.

If they have found blood in your poo they will ask you to come for more tests with a doctor. One of these tests is called a colonoscopy. A doctor or a nurse will contact you to tell you about the test.
